As I, together with a clearly dispirited Reszurre, was getting ready to go home, Adam said he wanted to give something to me. We descended to the mansion's basement and found ourselves in a storage room.
No way! Is that...?
Yep. It's his. You can use it to get back.
Waiting for us there was Air Gowl, a custom-made piece of dwarf technology that my savior used to ride. It was supposed to be missing, but apparently, Adam found it and bought it. He had no use for it, though, so he decided to give it to me.
Thank you for everything... Maybe next time we'll help you with chores...
Air Gowl uses mana stones to propel itself through the air, but because of its high energy consumption and maintenance requirements, I don't plan on using it after we get home, though that might change. Finally, we said our goodbyes to Adam and left the mansion.
Nah, I already got all the research I needed, so you don't have to come here again.
Adam-san! That's rude...!
